Invention

Necessity is the mother of invention. Now it's time for you to be creative and analytical at the same time. The face of the world is changing and will, in many ways, look very different by the time you are an adult.

Maybe you won't even be working in this country. Maybe there will be an outsourcing backlash, and American made products will be in high demand. Maybe we'll all be flying around with jet packs while robots rule the world. Who knows?

Based on globalization and the current economic trends of exporting American jobs overseas, you and your peers should invent something that serves to fill some sort of need created by our changing world. It can be a product or a service. Explain how it will be used and what need it will fill. Use the space below (and the back of this sheet) to write up your invention. Your write-up must include:

1. a name for your invention.
2. a description of your invention (how it works, how it will be used, etc.).
3. what need your invention will fill.
4. and how your invention relates to how the world is changing.
